

Special Session (SS03) on:

Agility, innovation, and institutional cooperation in the response to the pandemic in regional and metropolitan contexts

Organizer:

Jorge Gonçalves, Instituto Superior Técnico-University of Lisbon, CiTUA - Center for innovation in Territory, Urbanism and Architecture, Portugal, jorgemgoncalves@tecnico.ulisboa.pt

The aim and scope:

The recent health and socio-economic earthquake were challenging for institutional structures. Most entities reacted with adjustments in their functioning, in their mission and even in the relationship with other entities. These changes mitigated the consequences that affected families, activities, and territories. This renewed or reinvented institutional structure also represents a resource for social and economic recovery and regeneration.

The aim of this special session is therefore to discuss lessons learnt, successful and not so successful experiences and what has been gained in this ocean of despair, especially in the field of urban, metropolitan, and regional institutional governance.
